MEMENTO : A MOMENT IN TIME

"To know your days are numbered, your time is short. You'd think after all this time I'd be ready, but look at me.

Stretching one moment out into a thousand just so I can watch the snow." - Tilda Swinton

Hailing from the rural and forested interior of Pahang, Sabihis Pandi tends to spurn the confines of realism for the more liberating notions of surrealism instead. After all, the 34-year-old artist reasons that the power of imagination is among the greatest in this realm of mundane reality. The fantasy of an artist can dominate reality by seeing the world in a different light, almost as though in a dreamlike world, hidden just beneath the surface of reality.

In his newest series, 'Memento', Sabihis depicts objects of still life which hold personal value to him. He consequently endows these everyday objects with sentimental value, in spite of their external mundanity. His works often take place in an ordinary kitchen, with the twist of several out-of-place animals showing up on his canvas. These fantastical ideas are often based on folk tales of animal characters bending the rules of reality for their own purposes. Hence, they act as a defining symbol for this particular series of woodcuts.

Also working alongside Sabihis is 36-year-old Ismail Awi. Born in the East Coast state of Terengganu, he has always had a fondness for depicting scenes of life that would have otherwise gone unnoticed by others with a less discerning eye. After all, life is fleeting and what better way to prolong it than to take it in one's slow stride? As such, Ismail's works of art tend to reflect this, representing moments in time that one would find one's self familiar with, albeit with a little fantastical twist or two.

For Ismail, capturing such moments of everyday life, be it through photography, art or writing, helps keep that moment alive and well. This is especially true in an era where every event possible will be documented by people wishing to share it with their circle of contacts on social media. Sharing these moments with others is one way to show what one is feeling and experiencing at any given moment.

Ismail's latest series, 'A Day to Remember', thus features symbolic visuals which express a certain narrative. Animal subjects are placed within the confines of a landscape, often the ordinary interior of a house. It acts as a metaphor of remembrance. The series takes notes from the Romantic movement, with these momentary narratives being a metaphor. Through them, Ismail encourages viewers to appreciate every passing moment of life. By slowing down, one may finally see the beauty in it that often goes unnoticed.

With their shared emphasis on remembering the little moments in life, Sabihis and Ismail thus will present viewers with their respective artworks. Though their pieces may wow viewers simply by appearances alone, one can hope that the message that they hope to spread will not be lost, like so many moments in time.
